

Andrew McLean

Principal, DTP Partners

Andrew has two decades of experience in mining and metals holding site and corporate roles on four continents. He has broad experience across the mining value chain including delivering multiple greenfield, brownfield and transformation/operational excellence projects across the full lifecycle.

Andrew has a demonstrated ability to shape strategy, stand-up large programs in dynamic environments and to deliver outcomes at mega-scale. This experience covers aluminium, copper, coal, diamonds, gold, iron ore, uranium, and zinc/lead in both OECD and non-OECD countries.

Andrew was a senior program manager at the greenfield Oyu Tolgoi (OT) project across construction, business readiness, commissioning and ramp-up for five years during the Phase 1 greenfield project. This included providing project leadership and business architecture for the business/operations readiness program. Following commissioning, Andrew led the Integrated Planning and Improvement team to drive operational and business performance to and beyond nameplate capacity. Andrew has also led mining innovation and automation programs for the design, development, and operational readiness of an autonomous mining system along with other Industry 4.0 supported transformations.
